

LEADERSHIP IN THE GLOBAL CONTEXTS OF GHANA

Leadership in International Contexts (EDLD 869) | July 6-18, 2018

PARTICIPANTS WILL:

- Experience the uniqueness of Ghana as a global south country and one of Africa's stable democracies
- Gain cross-cultural insight into the education and culture of Ghana through academic lectures and guided visits
- Observe, listen and speak with various leaders of Ghana, including visit with village chiefs and the Queen Mother
- Interact cross-culturally with Ghanaian students and together visit cutting-edge programs in and near Accra and the Cape Coast
- Discover Ghanaian culture while learning the basic of Senchi Ferry Cape Coast Slave Castle, and visiting University of Cape Coast and Korle-bu Teaching Hospital

A program endowment helps to offset travel costs for University of St. Thomas students. Final program costs will be announced during spring semester. The application deadline is March 1, 2018.

ABOUT THE INSTRUCTORS

Jean-Pierre Bongila, Ed.D., is associate professor in the Department of Educational Leadership. For the last 10 years, he has conducted global leadership courses in South Africa, Tanzania, Cuba and Brazil. This unique program allows Bongila and his students to critically engage global inequalities between the global South and the Global North and position themselves as global educators and learners.

Dr. Artika Tyner, co-instructor and Vice President for Diversity and Inclusion at the University of St. Thomas, has been to Ghana on a number of occasions. Her scholarly work reflects her commitment to training students to become global leaders and change agents.
